Professional Development Opportunities

Volume I, Issue III

March 01, 2008

An excellent opportunity to experience an entertaining and insightful simulation--one that is very popular with students.

Participants will benefit from employer and career services perspectives during this interactive professional development seminar. Co-sponsored by PennACE and the Eastern Association of Colleges and Employers (EACE), space is limited. Watch your email for registration information.

Presenters: Brian Rider, Assistant VP, Strategic College Recruiting, PNC Financial and Barbara Juliussen, Associate Director, Career Services, University of Pittsburgh

Location: Treesdale Golf and Country Club, Gibsonia, PA

Brian has established effective strategic college recruitment partnerships with 14 colleges and universities. In addition to typical employer-career services connections, Brian has launched some innovative programs that are mutually beneficial to career services and corporate recruitment. One of his most popular programs is a 2-hour computer-based simulation, "Decisions, Decisions." Working with groups of 10, Brian will take PennACE participants through his presentation and debrief, highlighting the benefits for all constituents--students, employers, and career service staff.

Barbara Juliussen, associate director of career services at University of Pittsburgh, will relate steps to developing effective employer collaborations. Additionally, from a career services perspective, Barbara will share the benefits of the strong partnership University of Pittsburgh has with PNC Financial.
